From the beginning of our search for a home in this fascinating part of Tuscany, Barbara and Giancarlo possessed a unique ability to tune into our needs. At a moment when we ourselves were unclear and very new to this area, they showed us possibilities we could never have seen on our own.

This is a Tuscany full of a wild and peaceful nature, close to the fabulous city of Lucca and not far from the turquoise waters of the Cinque Terre. It is a place from which it is easy to travel, and to experience truly being in the center of Europe and of Italy. (Pisa Airport and local trains and cars make travel easy).

This is a place of wonder for those who love nature and who seek a place of beauty and richness which is so much less commercial than most parts of Tuscany (making it also more affordable). Going up into the Garfagnana there is the glory of ancient tradition and a nature full of curves and mountainous surprises.

Here at “home” there is a beautiful pool- in Bagni di Lucca- great tennis courts of clay, thermal baths and massage- all of which make this area a real “find” and an exceptional one. Of course even in the area of food it is wonderful- of course- and again, less expensive than in more commercial parts.

Giancarlo and Barbara were never pushy though always available, even when we got back home before our closing. They took us through every phase with care and knowledge. Even now we can count on them for questions and services., from the bureaucratic and technical – to help with our comfort in dealing with shops and restaurants. (One should add once again, that the people in these towns are exceedingly friendly and accepting).

The availability of Barbara and Giancarlo does not stop at the completion of the sale, or for us, when we are in New York. It must be clear by now that they have helped us feel at home in our new home, and we grow to love it here all the more, all the time. For all their help and dedication and humanness- and professional knowledge, we thank them and wholeheartedly recommend them for anyone ready for an adventure in this gorgeous part of the gorgeous Tuscany in the wonderful country of Italy.
