

Geocasanet

Testimonial

Barbara and Giancarlo have guided us through the Italian way of buying an estate in their country, in many ways much more extensive than we are used to.

We got very professional help all the way, from viewing properties, obtaining our fiscal code, opening the bank account, up to the final contract, and afterwards with building permit and restoration works.

Buying a home in Italy is nothing to be anxious about, but you should know there are people and companies that don't act seriously.

Our contacts with the Marovellis has and are very positive. They are honest and straightforward and we trace a pride of what they do.

Barbara speaks very good English and is very serious in her profession as a real estate agent.

Giancarlo with his experience as a "geometra" can show you superior restorations and give estimation on costs depending on what you desire.

We can only give them our best recommendations and are you looking for something in this area they are the right partners.

Good Luck with your house hunting,

Mia & Olle
